Welcome to Our Practice

Carv. North Carolina

Karrenbauer Integrative Family Medicine (KIFM) is an Integrative Medicine practice. We offer a model of family medicine that is patient-focused, thorough, holistic, personalized, accessible, and affordable.

Integrative medicine is a modern approach to maintaining health and preventing or treating chronic disease. It is a healing-oriented medicine that emphasizes a holistic, patient-focused approach to health care and wellness - body, mind, spirit and community.

At KIFM, we advocate in returning family practice medicine to its roots values in clinical excellence and compassionate care and restoring the sanctity of the patient-physician relationship.

Our medical practice offers integrative primary care that focuses on your family and aligns with your lifestyle.

Integrative medicine is an innovative healthcare model that emphasizes a holistic approach, combining the best of conventional medicine with evidence-based complementary therapies. This model prioritizes direct access to your primary care physician through a straightforward, affordable monthly subscription fee. By eliminating the need for traditional insurance involvement in the doctor-patient relationship, integrative medicine fosters a more personalized and accessible healthcare experience. This approach is gaining traction as it offers benefits for both physicians and patients, helping to control costs while enhancing the quality of care.

By cutting out the administrative costs of complying with health insurance, the physician reduces overhead and savings are passed on directly to the patient.
